

Spot the Hazard

You may have heard the saying “it’s the little things that count.” There are so many things that influence our lives and by ignoring some of these can potentially cause serious consequences in regards to safety. We have all sat through the safety message and have been reminded to watch out for the big hazards that could harm us, however the little hazards can sometimes cause injuries too.

We often intend to report a frayed power cord, a slip hazard or damaged stepladder to our supervisor but don't take the time, or forget about it. It is important to follow through on our good intentions, since these are just the sort of "little things" that can result in a serious injury to ourselves or to other workers.

Little things do count and if we take a few minutes to pay attention to all the potential hazards around us we can prevent serious injuries from happening to ourselves and other employees.
